

Replaced

Joydrop

What are you staring at, what are you laughing at
You would see it so clearly if you'd just come closer
Didn't it work for you, why did you spit it out
It would have gone down so much easier
If you didn't swallow it whole

Now I'm so afraid of losing my way
And I can't afford to make mistakes
And I say these things 'cause I know

We can all be replaced
When nothing hurts and nothing matters

The thing you were looking for, I think it was always there
You would have seen it
All you had to do was turn around

No more hanging on to the promises they make
We'll just hang on to the moments
'Cause we can all be replaced

So what are you staring at, what are you laughing at Doesn't it ever stop, don't you know
That bridges burn
And tables turn
