

War Zone

JR JR

And when I woke up I was in a war zone
Just sorted through all this propaganda
I close my eyes again, it all came seeping in
I wondered if I left my things in order

It seemed so different then, I pictured in my head
Everyone fighting looked exactly like me
The ground was shaking so I found a foxhole
And I stayed there for an entire weekend

I've been waiting too long, I don't wanna be carrying it no more
I've been waiting too long, I don't wanna be carrying it no more

At first I tried to run in each direction
Between the concrete and the other wreckage
Then the next morning there was nothing here and We figured that the battle must have moved on

I've been waiting too long, I don't want to be carrying it no more
I've been waiting too long, I don't want to be carrying it no more
I don't want to be carrying it no more

Then when I woke up I was in a war zone
I was surprised to find a gun beside my feet
The handle fit just right, my eye was on the sight
And I was feeling like it can't be that easy

I don't wanna be carrying it no more
But we're going to wait so long
Yeah we're going to wait so long
Yeah we're going to wait so long
Yeah we're going to wait so long

Your heart beats faster
I'm trying to figure out if I should shoot or not
Your heart beat faster
I'm trying to figure out if I should shoot or not
Your heart beats faster
I'm trying to figure out if I should shoot or not
Your heart beats faster
I'm trying to figure out if I should shoot or not
