

Problem Child

Jude York

Hey little me, are your parents home?
Are you dancing in the kitchen hitting high notes?
If you only knew what I know now
You wouldn't be afraid to sing so loud

Hey sixteen the bottle lands on you
Always ready for a dare 'cause you hide the truth
They're only faces passing through
One day you're gonna own the room

Catch your breath
Stop running from the monsters
Under your bed
Don't let 'em live one second longer
In your head

You think that you're a problem child
But you are not the problem
You'll find home some day
Away from all of these strangers

They told you you're a problem child
'Cause they don't want a problem
But they'll all fall from grace
Because everything changes

And you are not the problem, child
No, you are not the problem, child

Great. Go

Hey, first love, I've been waiting for this Feeling everything I didn't know I'd missed
When sadness was a friend of mine
I never thought I'd come alive

Hey, next year, when a year has gone
When I'm twenty four, will all the hurt be done?
'Cause I just wanna dance again
And be the kid I wasn't then

You think that you're a problem child
But you are not the problem
You'll find home some day
Away from all of these strangers

They told you you're a problem child
'Cause they don't want a problem
But they'll all fall from grace
Because everything changes

It all changes
It all changes
It all changes
Everything changes

It all changes

It all changes
It all changes
Everything changes
