

Black Superman

Jude.

Another day has passed
In this love affair that we swear now will ever last Another night is here
And you will kiss me darkly I will hold you close my dear

But how many dreams can I
Unravel in the morning before I have to face you How many seams can I
Destroy by tearing off your underwear as if I chase you

When all my life I have heard
You should only be a bird
Now you're more than I deserve
So I'll be leaving

And no black Superman is gonna come and save me

Here comes hot Johnny again That boy can ride the lightning and then go home and eat again
He's everything I'll never be He's got the feathered hair and a lot of things the ladies see
Got him an albatross love
She wraps them wings around you ten feet long of downy love
And holding on so goddamn tight
She makes a man make plans she makes him fly away at night

All my life I have heard
You should only be a verb
Now you're more than I deserve
So I'll be leaving

And no black Superman is gonna come and save me

How many teardrops can I Pretend to shed on each occasion that a man's supposed to
How many innocent die
Before we both admit we never care unless we're close
to
How many wishes are left
Before we both admit it isn't getting better
Before you call it quits and cease to be the willing wedder

When all my life I have heard
You should only be a bird
Now you're more than I deserve
So I'll be leaving

And no black Superman is gonna come and save me this time

All my life I had heard
You should only be a bird
So I'll be leaving

And no black Superman is gonna come and save me
