Juke Ross

As we ride along the road
Motherland she knows, her sons and daughters
We will strive to defend our own
Sacrifice our bones, for the land
We call home, home, home, home

From the lands afar we came and made this delight here our home
Resting head and hearts upon the shoulders
Our load there she goes
Together we have strived to build a nation so united 6 hearts beat as one, forever undivided

As we ride along the road
Motherland she knows, her sons and daughters
We will strive to defend our own
Sacrifice our bones, for the land
We call home, home, home, home

Home is a place where we call our own
Home is the place where we rest our bones
When our gods are dry at the railroads end
Home is the place where we start again
Home is the top of a rhino's peak
Down into the rivers where the waters run deep
Home is the place where the legend's told
I've got your splendor, El Dorado's gold
Home is the place where 6 hearts mend
Stitched together with a knotted end
Home is the place when you're tired and old
You can lay your back and rest your soul

As we ride along the road
Motherland she knows, her sons and daughters
We will strive to defend our own
Sacrifice our bones, for the land
We call home, home, home, home

Home, home, home, home
Home, home, home, home
