

Stranger

Jukebox the Ghost

Your love's like a book
So many pages missing, it doesn't matter where I look
And no amount of wishing's gonna make
Our pages align
We're never on the same page at the same time
I'm another small town
You pass me by without ever even looking around
Yeah I might as well be an island, yeah I might as well be an island

As I walk through the crowd
I can feel that they all know
'Cause my heart's beating so loud
And sometimes when I'm with you
I just can't feel your love
And I'm just another stranger in another stranger's house

I'm another small town
You pass me by and never ever ever ever look around
Yeah I might as well be an island, yeah I might as well be an island

As I walk through the crowd
I can feel that they all know
Cause my heart's beating so loud
And sometimes when I'm with you
I just can't feel your love
And I'm just another stranger in another stranger's house
Yeah I'm just another stranger
Yeah I'm just another stranger in another stranger's house
