

Deep Thrills

Just Jack

I'm pushing out into the blueness
A soul soothing silence
Helping me to get through this
I'm floating breathless
Calmer than a Buddhist
In the newness
Of a world untouched by Human hands
It's undiscovered civilisations in uncharted lands
I'm diving deeper to ocean floors afar
A landscape so alien
It's like you're on Mars
Anemones and coral
Iridescent in the half light
As shoals of fish catch the tide
And drift out of sight

Tell me what you're waiting for
What's keeping you here
Step into the blueness
Let nothing interfere
You never know
You may like the deep thrill
So why not stay a while if
You've got time to kill

Fluid motions in the weightlessness
Well it's all forgotten worries
And long gone stress
A million miles from mean streets like this
Now we drink black coffee in downtown Atlantis
Washed clean of the grime and the city sins
The only sharks you'll find down here have fins
You're under threat no longer
So close your eyes and we can navigate by sonar
Into dark depths where evolution stands still
And submarine winds
Blow through the silent chill
You're introduced to the deep thrill
So why not stay awhile if
You've got time to kill

I'm pushing out into the blueness
I'm pushing out into the blueness