

You say you have this question
You can't put into words
And it has to do with beauty
Why beauty always hurts
You ask what if I fall
And I'm thinking don't we all

You say you're fine
You say I always take one season at a time
When all you see is autumn

And you wonder was it worth it
What will last and what will fade
I think I know because I heard it
In a song your heart has made
Only love will resonate

Why you're waiting to get covered
The cold inside your eyes
Your eye became whatever
The temperature will rise
Better hold on tight, my friend
You love you bow the end

You say you're fine
You say I always take one season at a time
When all you see is autumn

And you wonder was it worth it
What will last and what will fade
I think I know because I heard it
In a song your heart has made
Only love will resonate

From your white house in the desert
When they're turning off the light
You're sure you hear a whisper
And the whisper's getting loud
As if the ocean's getting closer
Is it telling you to see
It's telling you to take a closer look
At a million ways to be
So now you're thinking of your mother
You think of how she'd fight
So you crawl right off your gutter
Cause you know there will be light
And victory to feel
Eternity to be

And you wonder was it worth it
What will last and what will fade
I think I know because I heard it
In a song your heart has made
Only love will resonate