Are you still hiding somewhere?
Is the mask still on somehow?
You've made a life for yourself from staying true to who you are Even when it felt like nobody else could see it
You proved them all wrong
You are an example for others that there can be a better reality
That something positive can bloom from unwatered roots
You've earned your seat at the table
In those rooms, at those award shows that we'd only seen on TV once upon a time
Do you ever let that really sink in?
Take a moment to be present with me
I want you to let out all of the noise
Really feel who you are
Who you are is passing you by like the wind
Focus on who you are, right now
Who is that?
That's worth smiling about, isn't it?
