That day when I was with you
That warm day that was filled with you
The passing wind remembers you back then
That night when I was with you
I held you in my arms under the street lights
And I wished that time would stop

Countless days have passed
And they are fading
In the scattering time
No matter how much I long for you
I can't hear your memories

I'm missing you again
I'm thinking of you especially more today
The warm wind remembers you back then
You and us back then
We hesitated for a while and regretted
In case we would both get hurt

Because you would cry for a long time
Because I would cry while waiting for you
In the scattering time
No matter how much I long for you
I can't hear your memories

I walked for a while
Then I stopped and when I look back
It felt like you would be standing there just like that day
I feel the tears coming
My heart can't forget you again and
I'm waiting for a while

In the passing wind
On the street we used to walk together
In the song that I hear
You are there, calling out to me, just like that day
No matter how hard I try to forget you

No matter how much I long for you
You, back then I remember you, I remember
