

Up Nights

Karate

I make some enemies. I try to find shit that will keep me up nights, because i know that if i'm going to do what i'm going to do it's a red-eye drive to the morning light.
I swear one day that it won't have to be this way because when you're
tired, at least there's sunshine
sunshine

I don't hurt when people die; that is, unless they worked nights, because i know that i'm going to feel like i'm going to feel, no matter how many books i read.
when you're
tired,
at least there's sunshine.

Red lights on amplifiers trigger secret problems in me. I say,
'Smoke out the window,
until you heat the outside, outside'.
You've got no insurance, because insurance is a sin, and a Monday is still a Monday from this Sunday evening din you're in.
