

Morning

Karen Harding

I don't even care if there's no morning
No morning, no morning, no morning
I don't even care if there's no morning
No morning, no morning, no morning

Midnight stories
Keep me up
And I don't wanna close
The book
In the dark
We, find ourselves again

When the sun comes
Could it be the end
Or are we just in Elysium?
Standing
Looking right over the edge

I hear you calling
And the night it lasts forever
Let's forget to remember, together
As we're falling
We could stay this way forever and ever
But I don't even care if there's
No morning

I don't even care if there's no morning
I don't even care if there's no morning
No morning, no morning, no morning
No morning, no morning
I don't even care if there's no morning
No morning, no morning, no morning
No morning, no morning

The stars they move across the sky
They're watching us with crystal eyes
A curtain of the night like a disguise

When the sun comes
Could it be the end
Or are we just in Elysium?
We're standing
Looking right over the edge

I hear you calling
And the night it lasts forever
Let's forget to remember, together
As we're falling
We could stay this way forever and ever
But I don't even care if there's
No morning

I don't even care if there's no morning
I don't even care if there's no morning
No morning, no morning, no morning
No morning, no morning
I don't even care if there's no morning

No morning, no morning, no morning
No morning, no morning

I don't even care if there's no
I don't even care if there's no
