Our inconvenient burden

It could be lifted off of us

If we gave up

To finally let go

Of the free will that we were given

Our graves

Our name chalked

The pressure of wealth

No longer found

The unforgiving void
The forge in which our values burn
The resting leech
Our thinning minds
In my abstinence I turn to nothing

Our graves
Our name chalked
The pressure of wealth
No longer found

Let them inherit this fire now Lest they will forget that we were Ever here (2x)
