

The Most Beautiful Place

Kate DeAraugo

I woke up and your name was on my list, just like it always is
And the distance is becoming like a plague
Guess I'm used to it
Oh I should know, what never was, can never come again

But I remember you, like a tattoo on my skin
Like a never ending question, that burns inside my head
It's a story that was over, before it could begin
The most beautiful place, I've never been

I turn the page, but I just can't close the door, it's just a simple truth
I could say, "You don't hurt me anymore"
But I'd be lying to you
Oh, just because, it never was, doesn't mean it has to end

But I remember you, like a tattoo on my skin
Like a never ending question, that burns inside my head
It's a story that was over, before it could begin
The most beautiful place, I've never been

And you already had my heart
Wasn't there something there?
That's just the way I remember it
At least the way I remember it

Just the smallest little thing, and I'm right back there again
It's the story that was over, before it could begin
The most beautiful place, I've never been
The most beautiful place, I've never been

Mmhmm..
