

Just a Person

Katelyn Tarver

Sometimes I imagine
You talking to your friends
Tellin' 'em what happened
They all shake their heads
You say you can't believe it
I was someone that you loved
Then you call me a bitch
And they all back you up

And I know, I know I'm not forgiven
And I don't really blame you babe
Cause if it was me in your position
I would probably feel the same

If you only knew
How much time I spent
Trying to see your side
Trying to do things right
But eventually
Gotta think of me
And I can't carry all the burden
I'm just a person

I get in the habit
Of punishing myself
It's like I'm addicted to making my own hell
And I've been tryna fight it
And find a little room
Let myself be human
Maybe you could too

If you only knew
How much time I spent
Trying to see your side
Trying to do things right
But eventually
Gotta think of me
And I can't carry all the burden
I'm just a person

Making myself suffer, holding it all on my own
Isn't gonna take away anything that's already done
So I'm letting it go, even if you don't

If you only knew
How much time I spent
But eventually
Gotta think of me
And I can't carry all, no I can't carry all the burden

I'm just a person
I'm just a person
And I can't carry all the burden
I'm just a person
I'm just a person
And I can't carry all the burden
I'm just a person

I 'm just a person
