

You're Still Here

Kathy Troccoli

Day and night, fire in me slowly dies
Don't know why, I can't stop my eyes from cryin'
So much time has passed between us
But you kept calling out my name, out my name

You're still here
And I am reminded of another love that I once knew
You're still here longing for the day
That you can hold me close
Oh Lord you know, never meant to let you go
You've been here, you're still here

It's dark outside
I've been away from home too long
I see a light, you've left it on while I've been gone
In my mind I kept on hearing, oh, your words
I can't forget, can't forget

You're still here
And I am reminded of another love that I once knew
You're still here longing for the day
That you can hold me close
Oh Lord you know, never meant to let you go
You've been here, you're still here

So much time has passed between us
But you kept calling out my name, out my name

You're still here
And I am reminded of another love that I once knew
You're still here longing for the day
That you can hold me close
Oh Lord you know, never meant to let you go
You've been here, you're still here
