

Thy Neighbor's Morality

Kekal

I believe it is a politically generated act

When hundreds of civilians entering the scene to execute punishment

Taking a somewhat fascistic solution within a socialist environment

An ambivalence of goals; to make a better world or just spreading a fear?

Creating an instability within a supposedly peaceful neighborhood

Claiming to be the keepers of the "law", they search for victims

No tolerance for all the outsiders who live outside the "rule"

The use of violence occurs, and ironically it is permissible

There is no such difference between ignorance and hypocrisy

Living in a system where togetherness supremely reigns

To act the same, behave the same

Letting the neighbors become the watcher

Problems of mine are problems of theirs

The biggest concerns: moral issues

Who are they to be the judge for someone who lives next door?

The privacy severely invaded

Don't they know, have they ever realized?

They are as guilty as the ones they judged

Time to reap from worthless seeds
