

Cover Girl

Ken Hensley

You left me alone
Took a road of your own
Where the people adored you
While my music ignored you

Where we used to make love
Now you're living with fake love
In those far away places
Full of make-believe faces

I love what they did to your smile
But I hate what they did to your heart
So when another sweet face comes to take your place
And your dream dies before it could start

My guitar will still sing
Every note will still ring
Deep inside of every melody
The music will still live in me

And when your beauty's gone
Mine will live on
In the songs of my heart
That you tried to tear apart

But you're not the first fool
Who thought they were too cool
Whose cold land of plenty
Was suddenly empty

I loved you as much as I could
Until you came between me and my song
Then, like others before you, I chose to ignore you
'Cause music is where I belong

My guitar will still sing
Every note will still ring
Deep inside of every melody
The music will still live in me
