In Our Old Age

Kenny Rogers

Comin' $\square\square$ home from work today I saw our future And old man and his wife were holdin' $\square\square$ hands They were sittin' $\square\square$ on a front porch swing Like two young lovers

I waved to them as I went by then I realized That life does not grow dimmer with the settin' \square of the sun The best years of our lives still are yet to come.

In our old age love will just get better

The longer we'DDre together, we'DDll grow stronger everyday

Our bodies may get weaker and our hair will turn gray

But love will never fade in our age (love will never fade).

'DDcos today I just saw what our future holds
