"If only I had wings," I said, sighing at the ash ahead
"I'd fly like a bird, yearning for the faraway clouds"

Alone at the end of the skies, where comfort can't catch up
With wounds on top more wounds, someone's crying again

There's a song that echoes in the dark of night, in the depths of morning
When you hear that voice calling, it can become your wings

The wind has always been blowing, ever since those days, forever unchanging
If it's for you, I'd go anywhere, racing through the sky

If, seeking beauty, you were to rage at even your friends
I wonder what you'd gain in return, on the crawling roads of bloodshed

Your howling voice conceals the pain in your heart
Someone might have tried to put a hand on your back in comfort

With your dreams still burning in your heart, while you wander, while in the storm
You should just make like the birds as they spiral in flight

I've always been flapping my wings, facing the future, in the middle of my j ourney
Just moving forward, trusting the wind to lead me down the right path

I've been dreaming, stirred by the winds
So show me the way... to the end of the sky
I've been dreaming, stirred by the winds
So show me the way... to the end of the sky

The wind has always been blowing, ever since those days, forever unchanging
If it's for you, I'd go anywhere, racing through the sky

I've always been flapping my wings, facing the future, in the middle of my j ourney
Just moving forward, trusting the wind to lead me down the right path
