A superdreadnought, a fire-breathing monkey, a great trouble awakens from the heavens
The town-called town destroyed, everyone's working feverishly
As I have these dreams, I live worthless days
Today, there's no doubt arrears piling up and up

On the day Endeavor sets out, the cigarette-smoking angel sings
In the corner of the multi-tenant building, a little yawn seeps out
Currently, I live amid sarcastic fault-finding What face should I make? I unnaturally try to mimic a laugh

Carrying the brilliantly shining sun, the weather's nice today
Let's go out and play, commit more mistakes
Keep going down that narrow path

And we'll erase the torturously painful days
And we'll erase the days of torturously painful experiences
We don't need 'em, throw it all away
The makeover superstar is doing nonsense between trysts
The struggling-on Sunny truck is all messed up, so don't come back
Carrying the brilliantly shining sun, boy, what nice weather
Speak loud - papparapa

Bottom of the ninth, two outs, bases loaded, so long, at last a home run
Undisputed, not even a peep; be satisfied, they're already cheering
As I have these dreams, I'm eating seedy meals
Tomorrow, there's no doubt I'll be at the nearest station, platform three at 10

Hackney runs past, a crying angel stares at a betting ticket
A midair paper scrap scrapped, today forth gloriously penniless
Let everything become meaningless, walking around sobbing
Whatever face you make, it's uncouthly, laughably pale

Carrying every miserable night, the weather's nice today
Say, won't someone search for love with me?
If anyone hears this, won't they respond?
I've had tortuously painful experiences, and it still hurts
Again and again I've repeated it again
I don't need 'em, they've all gone away
The bombed superstar is doing nonsense between trysts
The fiercely retreating Sunny truck is all messed up, so don't come back
Carrying every miserable night, boy, what nice weather
Can't even speak

Carrying the brilliantly shining sun, the weather's nice today
Let's go out and play, commit more mistakes
Keep going down that narrow path
And we'll erase the days of torturously painful experiences
So we'll never see those useless lies ever again
We don't need 'em, throw it all away
The makeover superstar is doing nonsense between trysts
The struggling-on Sunny truck is all messed up, so don't come back
Carrying the brilliantly shining sun, boy, what nice weather
Speak loud - papparapa
