Crowded out by the headlights
We walked along, down the highway
We prayed on what lay beyond this road
Dreaming of Shangri-la

Whoever doubts you in any way
I love you still, every bit of you
If there does exist a God
I'm sure they'd say the same thing

Whatever what you do or say to me
Even if I'm wounded, I can handle it just fine
So take my hand, and go with us
Far away, to a place that's not here

Now, we can't believe it, this unending sorrow
We watched the sun, standing still on the ground
And yet we dream, of soaring the sky, to reach the next morning
Let's accept all that comes, and laugh together

Guided by the taillights
We walked along, down the highway
Before we knew it, we were burdened
Unable to discard our heavy loads

We can't blame it on anyone
Let's put an end to it, our regretful song
To the streetlights shining in the distance
We say goodbye and move forward

Even if I'm insulted, or made a fool of
If you'll be there to look at me
With a sparkling light, a popping snap
It feels like I can use magic

Now, we can't believe it, such a cruel conclusion
We're unbelievers, crawling up again and again
The wind blows, and headed somewhere, our linked footprints go outward
May our journey, not yet over, be a safe one

I see - if that is a light
I don't need any such thing
I'm living just fine like this
So there's no need to worry

With no place to go home to
We'll keep running further and further away
And wherever it is we arrive at
Let's have a hearty laugh there

Now, we can't believe it, this unending sorrow
We watched the sun, standing still on the ground
And yet we dream, of soaring the sky, to reach the next morning
Let's accept all that comes, and laugh together
