In the bottom of night, I fell into the sea
My blue shadow wavering
Drool dribbled from streetlights
Walking through a discarded town

Won't you laugh at my petty lies?
To ensure there won't be any mistakes made
On the merry-go-round, my vanilla melts
On a dusty herd of rabbits

At the Ferris wheel that moved no more
Inside, you were crying
Ready to let it all out, I sing
Before the sky melts away
Hey

Does it seem like a lie? The lights burst
They're surely twisted in tight
Whisper, let out a breath
We walk along the rails

Frog-eyed towers were lined up
Joined into the song of the dead
You shake, saying anything will do
Pushing yourself too far

The outlines have grown hazy
Let's be together always
Without going anywhere, let us sing
We can stay right here, and rust together

As we're dying, we know for sure we've only been born
It's nothing at all, a little street lamp

So then, it broke into dance, a stuffed toy with dead batteries
A one-armed cavalier, plucking away at a viola
Hey, hey, we can scoff at the very notion of such "things"
So, then, shall we dress this up?
Today is our birthday

So then, it broke into dance, a stuffed toy with dead batteries
A one-armed cavalier, plucking away at a viola
Hey, hey, we can scoff at the very notion of such "things"
So, then, shall we dress this up?
Today is our birthday

At the Ferris wheel that moved no more
Inside, you were crying
Ready to let it all out, I sing
Before the sky melts away

Days such as these should go away
And we can just melt into dreams
Hold my hand, and come, and let us sing
All through the discarded town

Hey
