Critical Thought

Killing The Dream

Your heart is breaking, your head keeps pounding out...Spelling out what you know best, that everything is just a mess. Some things are netter left unsaid.

And they'll run, but there's nothing you can do. The cuts and b lood and fading and love and empty words are real and it's noth ing, but it's something to be said. There's nothing to be said.

The more we talk of yesterday and all the things they used to s ay, the less we really hear ourselves. We are not the past beca use we are here today and it's worth so much than just two word s...There's so much more to say let's let it go. They gave it u p or is there nothing else to say?