

Rise

Kim Walker-Smith

In the morning, when I wake
I'm confronted with Your grace
All the pieces of my heart
They light up like the dawn against the dark

There is still music, in the pain
There is beauty, in all You've made
In the stillness of this place
We are standing together face to face

You say rise, You say rise
And draw me from the ashes of the night
So I rise, Yes I rise
To live inside the heart that beats with mine

Let surrender, be my song
When I've been running, for so long
And no battle, from where I've been Could tear me from the arms that pull me in

You say rise, You say rise
And draw me from the ashes of the night
So I rise, Yes I rise
To live inside the heart that beats with mine

Oh, You hold my heart
Through every night, through every night
Hold me ever close
Never let me go, never let me go!

You say rise, You say rise
And draw me from the ashes of the night
So I rise, Yes I rise
To live inside the heart that beats with mine
You say rise, You say rise
And draw me from the ashes of the night
So I rise, Yes I rise
To live inside the heart that beats with mine