

In Silhouette

King Charles

Time whispers when you're young
This won't happen again
The talk's a little louder
Saying do not forget
What's in colour now will soon be in a silhouette, a silhouette.

Take my love, take me where I know
For my heart needs hope when there's nowhere to go.

When there's no sand left to slip through my fingers
The burden of time released from my shoulders
As sure as night, Death will come as He must,
Oh the Master of turning dust back into dust
Back into dust

Take my love, take me where I know
For my heart needs hope when there's nowhere to go
Oh take my love, take me where I know
For my heart needs hope when there's nowhere to go.

Unquenched are my senses, unsatisfied
There's a beast of craving unleashed inside.

Oh take my love, take me where I know
For my heart needs hope when there's nowhere to go
Oh take my love, take me where I know
For my heart needs hope when there's nowhere to go.

Time whispers when you're young
This won't happen again....
