

Thief

King Charles

You wear me down to my heart and hollow bones
I blame you for every sadness that I know
And tearing fires keep love alive
If love's alive we'll all survive
What you give is what you leave behind

Will I ever find a resting place
Call it love or call it an embrace
I feel as though I'm drown and caught
And my body is scattered, my heart's exhausted
Only you can put me back together again

But there is one thing that no grave may restrain
When no walls would be built and no wars would be waged
Have my heart swelled but it's now on a diet
Now I wander alone deep in the night
To fill this void I howl like a horror shark
You are the thief that stole my heart

I'm dreaming, I'm dreaming through the night
I dream of you and the moment that I die
I want to live and I want to die by your side

But there is one thing that no grave may restrain
When no walls would be built and no wars would be waged
Have my heart swelled but it's now in the quiet
Now I wander alone deep in the night
To fill this void I howl like a horror shark
You are the thief that stole my heart

Have my heart swelled
Have my heart swelled
Have my heart swelled

You are the thief that stole my heart

But there is one thing that no grave may restrain
When no walls would be built and no wars would be waged
Have my heart swelled but it's now on a diet
Now I wander alone deep in the night
To fill this void I howl like a horror shark
You are the thief that stole my heart
