

The Castle in the Air

King Gizzard & The Lizard Wizard

The river opened her mouth and spat into a vast sea larger and bluer than a cloudless sky. Muscular, prodigious, immortal. But our vessel was invulnerable. It was well built, the boat rocked me into sleep and I floated through a deep dream, smooth sailing through the castle in the air.

One-eyed people living peaceful
With monopods and astomia
Without malice or kown
Without covetousness

Ohh, ahh

And there's men whose heads do
Grow beneath their shoulders
Maybe we'll find the world's center
Where equinox does not shatter
Spread our teaching
Alleviate their damnation

Ohh, ahh

Ohh, ahh

Without us they will go to hell
We are casting spells

Could it be
Faithful?
Could it seem
More real?
As I opened my eyes
The dream decolourised
Until it was un-skewered
And the harsh reality hit me like salty water
