

Strange Embrace

Kitten

I get blessings in the morning
Cause there's been silver fish crawling across my bed
Since last year at the party when
You kissed that girl with the purple hair
You carried her down the stairs
And you should be ashamed that was an accident [?]

And you know I always hated that
To be reminded that
I gave you everything

You're picking her up
You're gaining her trust
You're taking too much now
It's never enough

And you may have the world under your covers
But you're still so lonely, I can see it in your eyes
When every pretty face is just another strange embrace

Hundred and thirty dollar turtleneck, she'll probably be into that
You even sold me on that doctor
[?]
How does it feel [?]
Lying to yourself every day, questions of what it is you're worth
[?] neglected
[?] shivering
I thought you had everything

And you may have the world under your covers
But you're still so lonely, I can see it in your eyes
And every pretty face is just another strange embrace (at the end of the night)
And to think I was in love with an illusion
I wonder who you're foolin' this time around
Incapable of feeling for another strange embrace

You're picking her up
Gaining her trust
You're taking too much now
It's never enough

And you may have the world under your covers
But you're still so lonely, I can see it in your eyes
And every pretty face is just another strange embrace (at the end of the night)
And to think I was in love with an illusion
I wonder who you're foolin' this time around
Incapable of feeling for another strange embrace