

Change Your Mind

Knox

How'd I let my hair grow to my shoulders?
Haven't had it cut since, like, July
Tried to start my new year stone-cold sober
But couldn't get through January dry

I waste my days tryna get myself together
But it's a too much, too late effort
Like you're not long gone forever

I could change the way that I talk, patch up the holes in my walls
Fix all the ways that I fell short
I could quit the drink and the smoke, start lifting heavier stones
But what's the point anymore?
'Cause nothing's gonna change the fact that you walked out that door
So I'm losing my mind tonight, 'cause I can't change
No, I can't change yours

I could hang the stars outside your window (Window)
Write you all the songs left in my heart
But every single "Sorry" is just an echo in the window
Your ship set sailed and I'm still on the shore in the dark

I could change the way that I talk, patch up the holes in my walls
Fix all the ways that I fell short
I could quit the drink and the smoke, start lifting heavier stones
But what's the point anymore?
'Cause nothing's gonna change the fact that you walked out that door
So I'm losing my mind tonight, 'cause I can't change
No, I can't change yours

(No, I can't change yours)

No, I can't change your mind
No, I can't say [?]
No, I can't change your mind
No, I can't say [?]

I waste my days tryna get myself together
But it's a too much, too late effort
Like you're not long gone forever

I could change the way that I talk, patch up the holes in my walls
Fix all the ways that I fell short
I could quit the drink and the smoke, start lifting heavier stones
But what's the point anymore?
'Cause nothing's gonna change the fact that you walked out that door
So I'm losing my mind tonight, 'cause I can't change
No, I can't change yours
