Something New

Kongos

Maybe we should both try something new
Hold the tongue put down the pen
All this talking and all these words will never end

I come from here and you come from there
You've done that and I've only done this
And we wonder why the point is always missed

How do we rise above this wall
And trust that we won't fall

I wanna hear something new
And I want it to be the truth
I want the real me and you

I wanna hear something new
And I want it to be the truth
I want the real me and you

I don't know what to make of your tears
We're lost we're turned around
Lips are moving but there's no sound

Maybe we could both try something new
Or wait for a new idea
My head is full now nothing's very clear

How do we rise above this wall
And trust that we won't fall

I wanna hear something new
And I want it to be the truth
I want the real me and you

How do we rise above this wall
And trust that we won't fall

I wanna hear something new
And I want it to be the truth
I want the real me and you

I wanna hear something new
And I want it to be the truth
I want the real me and you
