

Pamela

The Kooks

Oh Pamela what did you do
You touched the ground and I fell in love with you
Oh Pamela what did they say
I reached for your hand but you turned and walked away

And can you lend your ears about my mate Pamela
So naughty but she loves her fella
One wink and a glint in the other one
At night she only wears Yves Saint Laurent
Watches black and white movies to get thin
Curls her hair just like Marilyn
Oh what an enigmatic woman
My gosh do some mothers have 'em

Oh Pamela what did you do
You touched the ground and I fell in love with you
Oh Pamela what did they say
I reached for your hand but you turned and walked away

Can you lend you ears for a man in trouble
She tripped me up and now I see double
I asked her what her life was missing
And if she'd like to go trout mask kissing
She said go get high with the other ones
I looked around lights on but no one home
Oh what an enigmatic woman
My gosh do some mothers have them

Oh Pamela what did you do
You touched the ground and I fell in love with you
Oh Pamela what did they say
I reached for your hand but you turned and walked away
Oh Pamela what did you do
You touched the ground and I fell in love with you
Oh Pamela what did they say
I reached for your hand but you turned and walked away
You walked away

Earl grey and lemons in the morning
By noon her nurse comes calling
Limousine with a stretcher in the back
They strap her down when she has a panic attack
I followed her down to the hospital
No visitors allowed on a bicycle
So I threw rocks up to the window
I broke the glass so she could feel the wind blow

Oh Pamela what did you do
You touched the ground and I fell in love with you
Oh Pamela what did they say
I reached for your hand but you turned and walked away
Oh Pamela what did you do
You touched the ground and I fell in love with you
Oh Pamela what did they say
I reached for your hand but you turned and walked away
Walked away
