

One's Own

Koven.

Trying to see the beauty within it
You know we left the heart and soul at the beginning
Feel the same but say it was different
Now we're alone again

But on this other side, maybe we're meant to try
For too long, for too long
And if it gets hard again, we'll just ignore the pain
We've waited too long, too long, too long, too long

(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)

But on this other side, maybe we're meant to try
For too long, for too long
And if it gets hard again, we'll just ignore the pain
We've waited too long, too long, too long, too long

(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)

Trying to see the beauty within it
You know we left the heart and soul at the beginning
Feel the same but say it was different
Now we're alone again (we're alone again)
(Alone again, alone again)

(We're alone again)
(We're alone again)
(We're alone again)
(We're alone again)

(We're alone again)
(We're alone again)
(We're alone again)
(Alone again, alone again)

But on this other side, maybe we're meant to try
For too long, for too long
And if it gets hard again, we'll just ignore the pain
We've waited too long, too long, too long, too long

(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)
(Too long, too long)