

Something in the Middle

Kree Harrison

Something, something, something in the middle
Something, something, something in the middle

I'm guilty of diving in the deep end
My feet never touch the ground
And I put you on a pedestal so high
That when you fall, it's a long way down

And I'm always going over the limit
I coulda laugh till I start to cry
I give in till there's no more giving
Then I get mad cause I'm empty inside

I need something in the middle
Not too much and not too little
I turn love into a riddle
And I get bored if it's too simple
Cause I worship the ground that you're walking
Or I'm walking all over you
Don't need a rebel or a hero
I need something in the middle
Something in the middle with you

Something, something, something in the middle
Something, something, something in the middle

Can't have one sip from a bottle
I gotta drink every drop of the wine
I drive all night, all the way to a breakdown
Must be something about the thrill that I like

Wish I could say I'm on the same level
Wish I could say I was mortified
I keep chasing the thing I've always wanted
Till that moment that I make it mine

I need something in the middle
Not too much and not too little
I turn love into a riddle
And I get bored if it's too simple
Cause I worship the ground that you're walking
Or I'm walking all over you
Don't need a rebel or a hero
I need something in the middle
Something in the middle with you

Something, something, something in the middle
Something, something, something in the middle

I need something in the middle
Not too much and not too little
I turn love into a riddle
And I get bored if it's too simple
Cause I either worship the ground that you're walking
Or I'm walking all over you
Don't need a rebel or a hero
I need something in the middle

Something in the middle with you

Something, something, something in the middle
Oh, I need

Something, something, something in the middle
