

I Remember You

Kris Allen

November in Manhattan, the color of the leaves
The sound of subways passing underneath our feet Sitting on the rooftop late on New Year's eve talking with our best friends
Making promises we won't keep

All these things you can recall and you ask if I can too
Well I don't remember everything but I remember you
My brother's graduation we never thought were come
How my dad was celebrating a little but too much

Or your little sister's wedding, speeches and champagne
The suit that I was wearing or the gift we never gave
All these things you can recall and you ask if I can too
Well I don't remember everything but I remember you

Cause like a spotlight, you got my attention burning so bright
Drowning out the details in my mind's eye
You are the only memory I keep coming back to

Someday I'll get older and darling, you will too
And I won't remember everything, but I'll remember you
