

Dark But Just a Game

Lana Del Rey

"It's dark but just a game"
That's what he would say to me
The faces aren't the same
But their stories all end tragically

Sweet, w-whatever, baby
And that's the price of fame
A tale as old as time, you'd be
Sweet, w-whatever, baby
A pretty little fool
To think exceptions to the rule
Just walk around
Like you and me this way

But life is sweet, w-whatever, baby
You gotta take them for what they've got
And while the whole world is crazy
We're getting high in the parking lot

We keep changing all the time
The best ones lost their minds
So I'm not gonna change
I'll stay the same
No rose left on the vines
Don't even want what's mine
Much less the fame
It's dark but just a game
It's dark but just a game

It's dark but just a game
So play it like a symphony
You know our love's the same
They'll both go down in infamy

I was a pretty little thing
Ain't got a lot to sing, but Nothing came for me the one but pain
But fuck it

Life is sweet, w-whatever, baby
Don't ever think it's not
While the whole world is crazy
We're making out in the parking lot

We keep changing all the time
The best ones lost their minds
So I'm not gonna change
I'll stay the same
Don't even want what's mine
Much less the fame
It's dark but just a game

We keep changing all the time
The best ones lost their minds
So I'm not gonna change

I'll stay the same
It's dark but just a game
It's dark but just...
