

Ebbtide

Lana Lane

He stopped by the other day
Said he came to say he was leavin'
She just closed the door, let out a sigh
No more tears to cry
Now he's gone

No more tears

All the tears i cried have dried
Like fading diamonds in an ebbtide

Made her way back to the willow tree
Heard a honey bee humming softly
Saw the carving, still so very clear
Jack and Jill were here-now they're gone

So many tears

All the years i lived have died
Like fading diamonds in an ebbtide

Time to put away the fairytale
Let your ship set sail to the future
'Cause in the mirror there's a woman now
The child remains somehow
Never gone
No more fears

All the fears i has subside
Like fading diamonds in an ebbtide

All the tears i cried have dried
Like fading diamonds in an ebbtide
All the fears i has subside
Like fading diamonds in an ebbtide
