

You'll Always Be

LANCO

Thrift store jacket hanging in the closet
Still remember the day that you bought it
Went out that night, you spilled red wine on it
From cheersing to our dreams

Some came true, some didn't work out
That was years ago but look at us now
If you ever start to doubt
Just who are you to me

You'll always be that dancing in the bar
At 2 in the morning while they're kicking us out
You'll always be that tattooed arm making
Waves out the window with the headlight out
Yeah, I know time will paint some lines
On the face of you and me
But in the end you've always been
The better half I need
You'll always be

The days move fast and years fly by
You can't go back and you can't rewind
But every night, looking in your eyes
You take me there again

You'll always be that dancing in the bar
At 2 in the morning while they're kicking us out
You'll always be that tattooed arm making
Waves out the window with the headlight out
Yeah, I know time will paint some lines
On the face of you and me
But in the end you've always been
The better half I need
You'll always be
(Yeah, yeah)

You'll always be that last first kiss
In late September, I knew right then
That you'll always be my memory
My everything
So never forget

You'll always be that dancing in the bar
At 2 in the morning while they're kicking us out
You'll always be that tattooed arm making
Waves out the window with the headlight out
Yeah, I know time will paint some lines
On the face of you and me
But in the end you've always been
The better half I need
You'll always be
Yeah, you'll always be
