It's Okay,
I don't even cry
all I think about is a memory and the dream when you kissed my arm as I look away, don't hear what I say

That maybe when I die
I get to be a car
driving in the night
lighting up the dark.
something in your voice
sparks a little hope I'll wait up for that noise
your voice becomes my home

One way road, don't care what I find A little thunders good, I thought maybe you would but it's okay, we all feel left out sometimes growing up, it can get you down.

I give you something that no one's going to give you my sleepin' skin and my heart deep down in you I'll never tell you, but you're my little scar Goodbyes are hard and they're hard and they're hard

Maybe when I die
I get to be a car
driving in the night
Lighting up the dark
Something in your voice,
sparks a little hope
