

NORTH FACE

Låpsley

Friendships come and go, this wind has changed
Reasons ebb and flow, I swear connection stays the same
We crossed the finish line
We crossed the finish line

Swiftly from our hands and into our hearts
Glances at apostles count the days before we part
We lost, but it's all right
It cost, but it's all right

Growing pains are long-haul flights
Growing pains are long-haul flights
Growing pains are long-haul flights

Hiking up the North Face, least we went there
No stone left unturned, but Cupid ain't that fucking fair
I softened in that time we spent
But it's not right to cross that line again

You'll find love again, I hope you find her
Type it out, don't send it, let me go down as the martyr
I've wrote this requiem
It's not long, but I hear it everywhere

Showed me how to love myself in colour
Found me when I lost myself and loved her
We crossed the finish line
We crossed the finish line

Growing pains are long-haul flights
Growing pains are long-haul flights
Growing pains are long-haul flights

Hiking up the North Face, least we went there
No stone left unturned, but Cupid ain't that fucking fair
I softened in that time we spent
But it's not right to cross that line again

Keep me in your bedside, keep me safe
Keep it in your mind, but don't let out, 'cause I need space
I'm not yours, and that decision's right
I'm not yours, but I was for that time
