

Here Comes the King

Larry Norman

Here Comes The King

The world is ending with a shout from above, Here comes the angels with the Champion of Love The fight is over; the victory belongs to the King.

The gates of heaven have been opened for you, The prince of darkness and his minions are through. The demons are in terror of the song that the angels sing.

Here comes the King. Here comes the King. Here comes the King.
Here comes the King.

The earth will shake, the moon will turn to blood. Armies will be drowned in the crimson flood. No one can escape the coming battle that the end will bring.

This world's imprisoned at the end of the age, The king of hearts holds the keys to the cage. The palace of shadows will be invaded and the halls will ring.

Here comes the King. Here comes the King. Here comes the King.
Here comes the King.

You can run through the rain, you can hide in the night, But you never will escape From the total revelation of the heavenly light.

I can see it coming and it won't be long, He'll change the night from the day and the right from wrong. Death is all around us, let us waken from this dream.

There is no escape for the human race, Faith alone will take you to the edge of space. You can enter by the door or you can stand in the shadows and scream.

Here comes the King. Here comes the King. Here comes the King.
Here comes the King. It's time to be ready, here comes the King.
Here comes the King and He's right on time.
Lyrics found here