

Trumpet Boy

LAUNDRY DAY

I have butterflies, dirty clothes, loose change, red cap
Homework that's long overdue
The hair tie that you left with me
Searching through my all my memories
Just to find out where life went so wrong
And there's photographs, framed on walls
Of me smiling, clueless and innocent still
Stayed home every Friday night
Now I stay out late until closing time
Tryna come up with something to say
Cause I have never been in love before
Maybe that's what we were working towards
I'll be on my way to save you now
The princess that's trapped in her head

I have tennis shoes, tennis days
A million thoughts when I see your face
Wishin I could turn back the clock
To days when I didn't know where I was, or where I'd go
And now I stand alone in the dark
Light keeps fading, but the lamp in my room is fine
And I'll keep aching, wishing for those simpler times

So hold me closely next to your heart as mine breaks
And I'll stay here waiting, hoping this pain goes away

They say that's just how it goes
You're just never told
What happens when she leaves
What happens when she goes
I can't find no protection
Everything was fine
Love has got me blind
Think I lost my chance
Running out of time
Now nothing can save me from me

Were going back and forth
It's not the same no more
It's too late now for me
Nothing more to say, seas have parted ways
Won't you come back to me
Were going back and forth
It's not the same no more
It's too late now for me
Nothing more to say, seas have parted ways
Won't you come back to me
