

Now I Know

Le Butcherettes

You think you're so much better off than everybody else
With a hand in your pocket around a mirror object of you
Where were you when I was down?
Midnight; crawling through the dirt unbroken
Saved myself, just took too long
Didn't it always feel certain?

I too used to think that I was better than the rest
Massive pride on my shoulders thought I was a mother for you
Won't admit you've lived this long
Riding on a useless train of thought
Allowed yourself to disconnect
Thought I'd never wake again

Now I know
I know we're overgrown and overused
Yes, we're done (done)
So yesterday, so cliché

Do you think that I'll let you get back in my way?
After all that we've been through it's always the same
Leave my head

Time changed our ways
We came across the many selves
No one felt a difference but I've come to notice the truth
Can't believe you've lived this long
Riding on a useless train of thought
Allowed yourself to disconnect
Thought I'd never wake again

Now I know
I know we're overgrown and overused
Yes, we're done (done)
So yesterday, so cliché

Did you think that I'd let you get back in my way?
After all that we've been through it's always the same
Leave my head

Come out, come out

Now I know
I know we're overgrown and overused
Yes, we're done (done)
So yesterday, so cliché

Now I know
I know we're overgrown and overused
Yes, we're done (done)
So yesterday, so cliché

Did you think that I'd let you get back in my way?
After all that we've been through it's always the same
Leave my head
