

Delicate

Leah McFall

I thought you painted love in broad strokes
Not fine lines, no time for those
But your mending the cracks in my heart
I thought not even the blood could heal
With you kind touch
And a small brush
My heart is sealed

Who could love me better than this?
With a love so delicate
You know me deeper
Than I do
Who could love me better than you?

I thought you'd love me from a distance
But I know your touch, is far more intimate
And your mending the cracks in my heart
I thought not even the blood could heal
By a soft touch, in a whisper
My heart is sealed

Who could love me better than this?
With a love so delicate
You know me deeper
Than I do
Who could love me better than you?

Your love is fierce
But you're careful with me
And your passions rage
Yet you speak so tenderly
You're the healer and I'm broken
Yet it's my heart that you've spoken for
As you pour your gold to hold me together

Who could love me better than this?
With a love so delicate
You know me deeper
Than I do
Who could love me better than you?
