

Bridges

Lee DeWyze

Do you ever cross a bridge and you stop right in the middle
And you look over the edge, but only for a little
And you wondering if anybody's waiting for you on the other side

Now the rails as cold as steel, in the middle of December
I close my eyes and think, but it's hard now to remember
How we got here in the first place, is anybody helping me down

I'm on the edge, on the edge, on the edge
Out on the ledge, on the ledge, on the ledge

Heart don't fail me now

Oh, these arms are all I have and I fill them with the burden
Of carrying what's left, of the way that I have hurt them
But we all have our scars, we all have our scars

Now the airs as thin as paper, that's been buried by the snow
And it serves as a reminder that we're only flesh and bones
Maybe we can't live forever, maybe we just want to go home

I'm on the edge, on the edge, on the edge
Out on the ledge, on the ledge, on the ledge

Heart don't fail me now
Heart don't fail me now

I'm on the edge, on the edge, on the edge
Out on the ledge, on the ledge, on the ledge
I'm on the edge, on the edge, on the edge
Out on the ledge, on the ledge, on the ledge
