

Tradewinds

Leo Sayer

I see it in your eyes
You don't want the sunrise to come
'Cause you know I'm on my way
You show no emotion
Till I'm out on the ocean, and far
So far away

Tradewinds, cold air
I surrender to my mistress, the sea
Tradewinds, calling
She said, "How long will it be
Till she hands you back to me again?"

The perfume you're wearing
The love we are sharing tonight
Just makes me wanna stay
And blue lady whispers my name
A competing refrain
But I've got to go away

Tradewinds, cold air
I surrender to my mistress, the sea
Tradewinds, calling
She said, "How long will it be
Till she hands you back to me again?"

Tradewinds, cold air
I surrender to my mistress, the sea
Tradewinds, calling
She said, "How long will it be
Till she hands you back to me again?"

Till she hands you back to me again