

Both Sides

Lera Lynn

A window, you can look out but not pass through
A window, without a doubt between everything and you

Both sides, to be on both sides
Want to have it all in, have it all in both eyes

A window, torn between want but cannot do
The window, you always choose to look but never break through

Both sides, to be on both sides
Want to have it all in, have it all in both eyes
Both sides, to be on both sides
Want to have it all in, have it all in both eyes

In limbo, stuck looking through the glass that you've always used
The window, find a way through before this one passes too

A window, ah
A window