

Just Before Dawn

Lethal

Raining darkness one day
found its way into my life
Sending all things that have passed me by Never to be again
When I looked out my window
Awaiting the morning light
That shall never know my name

Failing memories echo now
And then searching hours I spend Counting all the days that have gone by

As I looked out my window
Awaiting the morning light
That shall never know my name

Now I have begun to see
There will be no one to hear my last sigh

Can it be I'll never see beyond
Night again
But if so, at least I'll know
I was tired and

As I looked out my window
Awaiting the morning light
That shall never know my name