

Half The World Away

Lewis Capaldi

She said, "Go, find a little more heart
A little more soul and let me know
When you feel that fire get a little less cold
Just let me know"

I burned my bones getting closer than I've been before
I found myself diving headfirst through a closing door
I found love but I can't find a way to make it stay
It's always half the world away

She said, "Stay, why'd you always have to walk away"
Girl, you know I've always been the same
I'm a runaway
And I've never been sure
If I'll ever want more
I'm a runaway

I burned my bones getting closer than I've been before
I found myself diving headfirst through a closing door
I found love but I can't find a way to make it stay
It's always half the world away
I sold my soul just so I could right a wrong
I lost all hope in the road that we were walking on
I found love but I can't find a way to make it stay

I hope there's love, hope there's love
Left there in your heart
We got too close, we fell apart
I hope there's love, hope there's love
Left there in in your heart
We got too close, but

I burned my bones getting closer than I've been before
I found myself diving headfirst through a closing door
I found love but I can't find a way to make it stay
It's always half the world away
I sold my soul just so I could right a wrong
I lost all hope in the road that we were walking on
I found love but I can't find a way to make it stay

I hope there's love, hope there's love
Left there in in your heart
We got too close, we fell apart
I hope there's love, hope there's love
Left there in your heart
We got too close, but

I burned my bones getting closer than I've been before
I found myself diving headfirst through a closing door
I found love but I can't find a way to make it stay
It's always half the world away
