

run

Lewis Watson

Maybe I was wrong
And maybe you were too
Cause the nights are getting longer, dear
Now that I spend them without you
And if you're not with him
Come and fill my empty room
Oh won't you settle down and steal my skin
Just like you used to

And when you're all out of love, you could run
You could run
And you've had enough, you could run
You could run
And when the morning sun forces in the light
Won't you hold me cause I've come undone
Cause you're not by my side
When you're all out of love, you just run
You just run
When you've had enough, you just run
You just run
When you're all out of love, you just run
You just run
When you've had enough, you just run
You just run
